

Aaron Howard

Aaron and his wife Marianne live full time on Treasure Island. The property has been in the family since 1957 and continues to be a gathering place for family and friends. For years the "island escape" was to a 30 foot Spartan Trailer that provided a perfect getaway from Seattle and Tacoma. In 1992, the Howard's built their home on the island and have expanded and modified it many times since then. Aaron and Marianne are on the west side of the island and welcome visitors to stop by and say hello!

Aaron is an electrical engineer with degrees from the University of Washington. He spent the first half of his career in biomedical devices (diagnostic ultrasound) and moved to software in the late 1980s when he joined Aldus Corporation, the PageMaker company. Today Aaron is President & CEO of Mass Ingenuity, a software as a service (SaaS) company headquartered in Portland Oregon and focused on deploying enterprise performance management (EPM) systems for state government and commercial supply chain organizations.

Aaron's interests include music, fly fishing, and running.
